RAY NAVIN

MARION MAN GETS NEW JOB

Ray Navin Quits Detroit Post To Coach at Kenyon College.

GRADUATE OF ST. MARY

Has Compiled Brilliant Record in Three Years as Athletic Director.

Ray Navin, a native of Marion and brother of F. E. Navin of 264 Chestnut street today announced his resignation as athletic director and football coach of St. Mary's High school in Detroit to accept a position as coach at Kenyon college in Gambier, O.

Navin, a graduate of the St. Mary parochial school here, has been athletic director of the Detroit school since 1930, and has compiled a brilliant record there. He took over the coaching reins immediately after his graduation from the University of Detroit and proceeded to take the school out of the worst athletic slump in its history to a position of prominence in Detroit city athletics.

His 1931 team rode through an undefeated campaign, amassing nine victories against no defeats and scoring 284 points while holding the opposition scoreless.

Navin was a two-sport athlete while a student at St. Mary school here, playing halfback on the football team and center on the basketball team. While at the University of Detroit he did not compete in basketball, confining his athletic activity to playing end of the football team.

MAXIM FREED, WILL READOPT OWN NAME

Pardoned by Governor, Escaped Convict Who Made Good Will Start Anew.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16—Gone today was the skeleton in the closet of the life of 25-year-old Paul Maxim and he was free once again to pick up the threads of his life that became tangled last week when he was sent back to Ohio to complete a reformatory sentence.

Known here as J. Paul Faraday, a name he said he had assumed upon his escape from an honor camp of the Ohio reformatory at the age of 19 while serving a sentence for stealing high school class rings, Maxim had risen to the position of advertising manager of a paint company, then his true identity was discovered and he was returned to complete his sentence.

Yesterday Governor George White of Ohio handed him a pardon and Maxim said that Faraday was dead forever, but that Maxim would carry on.

"I decided several days ago that I wanted to go back to my old name," he said.

Maxim said he planned to go first to Youngstown, O., to visit his parents and after that hoped to get his job back.

The young man's rise in the world of business following his escape six years ago reads like a story book. It began with a dish washing job in Pittsburgh and carried on in Detroit and Los Angeles, where he got his first job with the paint company, later working in the St. Louis branch before being appointed advertising manager in Chicago in 1931.

After hearing of Maxim's lack of funds the Mansfield, O., American Legion post advanced him enough funds to go to Youngstown for the visit with his parents.

LINDY IN ICELAND, PLANS NEXT HOP

Plans Call for 20 Millions for Poor Relief Purposes.

SEES U. S. AID

One Suggestion Is For Real Estate Bond Issue.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16—Expressing conviction that the country now is in the "last stages of this depression," Governor George White in his message to the special session of the legislature today, submitted his five alternate taxation plans to raise $20,000,000 for relief during the ensuing year.

By enacting legislation that will guarantee additional relief funds approximating $10,000,000 for the remainder of this year the governor told the lawmakers he was certain the federal government will advance money for relief until the revenues from the tax program begin to flow in, in sufficient amount to take care of the state's needs.

After reviewing legislative efforts to enact adequate relief legislation and submitting his five alternative tax programs consisting of a retail sales tax, selective sales taxes, utility excise taxes, beverage taxes and bond issues, the chief executive again told the legislators it could if it saw fit, discard his proposals providing it enacts "an adequate measure of its own."

Comments on Plan

In his address, which was delivered before a joint session of the two legislative branches, the governor made no comment on any of his five alternative proposals except the proposed $20,000,000 real estate bond issue to be submitted to the voters at the November election.

"I am submitting the plan for a state bond issue only as a last resort in the event the general assembly fails to enact any of the alternate programs previously set forth," he said. "The state of Ohio with no bonded indebtedness, except the $750,000 used for the reconstruction of the state office building is one of the few states of the union free from debt and consequent taxation for interest and sinking fund requirements; consequently, Ohio's credit is recognized and outstanding, and reflects credit upon previous governors and general assemblies which have zealously guarded its solvency. Only the stern necessity of caring for the unemployed and destitute in this vital emergency, after all other methods of meeting the situation have been discarded, can justify a state bond issue."

Division of Funds

Discussing relief needs for the current year, the governor said the present estimate is $49,655,000 of which $10,052,000 will come from local funds; $27,650,000 from federal funds, and the balance, $11,953,000 from state funds.

He said that though July had brought a decrease of 14 per cent in the number of families on relief rolls, and that further decreases are expected, there has been a counterbalancing increase of 15 per cent in the cost of commodities.

The governor also pointed out that in addition to furnishing food and clothing to the needy, it is

ROOSEVELT CONFERS WITH STEEL LEADERS

Schwab and Taylor Discuss Hours and Pay With President Today.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—President Roosevelt moved for a decision in the dispute over the new working code for the key steel industry in a conference today with Myron Taylor and Charles M. Schwab—the leaders of the steel business.

Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corp. and Schwab, the chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., arrived at the White House as the President's industrial administrators were striving to bring the steel industry to a settlement on its proposed charter for shorting working hours and higher wages.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to comment on the conference pending the arrival of the industrial chieftains but there appears little doubt he is ready to speak his mind and to find a solution of the difficulties in the way of an agreement.

Rampaging Auto Almost Wrecks Cardington Home

Valuable Antique Furniture Smashed as Careening Car Plows Through Three Rooms.

Special to The Star

CARDINGTON, Aug. 16—A light sedan on a rampage here this morning, wrecked valuable antique furniture in the Will Reuhrmund home and narrowly missed injuring Mrs. Mary Helman, a neighbor, who was in the sitting room of the Reurhmund home when the car plowed into the front of the house, through the living room and partly through a small sitting room at the rear.

The car, owned by Harry Kenner of here, was parked on the scales at the J. G. Mills mill across the street from the Reuhrmund home. The starter stuck and Mr. Kenner got out to use the crank. When the car started, it started backwards, shooting across the street at a high speed, and crashing into the Reuhrmund home.

Before it was stopped, the car had demolished practically every piece of the treasured antique furniture in the living and sitting rooms, and had knocked down the two pillars between the rooms. The wheels, spinning on carpets on hardwood floors, finally slowed down the car, and Mr. Kenner, dashing in pursuit of his careening car, was able to stop its mad flight.

Mrs. Helman, who was making a social visit, was seated in a rocker in the sitting room. She jumped just in time to avoid being struck.

Both the car and the furniture are insured, the owners said, but both are uncertain whether the insurance will cover the strange nature of the accident.

Mr. Reuhrmund was unable to place an accurate figure on the value of the furniture this morning, but it was estimated the loss would amount to approximately $2,000.

TRANSFER CO. SAFE CRACKED

COMBINATION HAMMERED

Strong Box Pried Open; Burglars Apparently Familiar With Watchman's Routine

Forcing open the safe in the office of the Merchants Transfer Co. at 160 McWilliams court last night burglars escaped with $500 in currency and silver, J. W. Peoples, owner of the company, told police this morning.

The combination of the safe had been knocked off, apparently with a hammer, and the money drawer in the interior was pried open.

The money drawer, with all its contents, was overturned on the floor. All but a few checks were taken, Peoples said.

The safe-cracking was discovered at 7 a. m. today by S. J. Clinger, company foreman, as he opened the office for the day.

Peoples expressed a belief the safe-cracking was done by persons familiar with the night watchman's routine. The watchman, who is employed by several firms in the neighborhood, visits the transfer company once an hour. The burglary last night came in between his rounds, Peoples said.

Peoples said the loss is insured.

OHIOAN ADMITS POISONING FOUR

Akron Lawyer Confesses Taking Lives of Family, Authorities Report.

By The Associated Press

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Aug. 16—A confession that he poisoned four members of a family was signed today by Mark H. Shank, an attorney of Akron, O., and police advanced as a motive the imminent arrest of one of the victims for getting papers for Shank from the prosecuting attorney's office in Wooster, O., in a forgery case against a client of Shank.

Police said they found a letter from Shank in the clothing of one of the victims, Mrs. Ethel Colley, advising her and her husband, Alvin, to "keep eyes open, mouth shut," and he would soon join them and "you will all be rich."

Colley was sought by Wayne county, Ohio authorities on a warrant charging him with stealing receipts an dother evidence from the office of Prosecuting Attorney Lyman R. Critchfield Jr., which was intended for prosecution of Clarence Braucher of Barberton, O., on a forgery charge. Shank was attorney for Braucher.

The evidence, the Ohio prosecutor said, was stolen while Braucher was out on bond.

Child's Testimony Taken

A four-year-old son of the Colleys, who escaped the poison, was quoted by Prosecuting Attorney Miller Halbert of Malvern as saying he saw Shank put something in some grape juice which his parents and brothers drank while they were eating a picnic lunch near Malvern yesterday.

The victims, found late yesterday in an automobile which had

GALA EVENT TO BE HELD HERE ON WEDNESDAY

Expect City To Be 100 Per Cent Back of Recovery Program.

SPEAKERS ARE LISTED

Courthouse Esplanade Likely To Be Scene; Bands To Play.

Marion, in line with many other Ohio cities, is planning a gala event to celebrate its participation with the NRA program.

Preliminary plans for a public celebration next Wednesday night, probably on the courthouse esplanade, were announced today by heads of the Marion NRA campaign committee.

A speaker prominent in recovery work will be supplied by the Ohio NRA committee, with offices in Cleveland. Talks by one or two Marion men and band music will be parts of the program.

By the time of the celebration, committee members predict, Marion will be virtually 100 per cent in support of the NRA program, judged at the present pace of signers of codes.

Show of Patriotism

The celebration, committee heads said, will be a "tangible expression of Marion's willingness to do her part in the NRA movement."

Plans for the meeting will be completed this week by committee members and officers, headed by Mayor W. C. Phillians as chairman, Karl W. Schell, vice chairman in charge of the men's division, Mrs. Glover Snyder, vice chairman in charge of the women's division, and W. D. Brown, manager of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, secretary.

Members of the tomato packing branch of the Ohio Canners' association met yesterday afternoon in Hotel Harding to discuss increased payments to tomato growers as a phase of the recovery program.

District Meeting Here

Restaurant proprietors in Marion, LaRue, Bucyrus and Mt. Gilead met in the Marion Chamber of Commerce offices yesterday afternoon and voted to put NRA agreements on wages and hours into effect Monday, Aug. 21. Nine Marion automobile dealers and one from Prospect, meeting yesterday afternoon in Hotel Marion, signed the NRA blanket code and are awaiting adoption of a national code before adopting definite hour and wage agreements, representatives said.

Filing of compliance certificates at the Marion postoffice kept up at a steady pace, with 31 employers signing up in the period from yesterday noon until noon today. The list at noon today had reached a total of 673 signers.

Thirty-one Marion employers who filed NRA compliance certificates at the Marion postoffice from noon yesterday until noon today are listed on Page 7.

Difficulties Develop Over 4 Major Codes

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—Vexing difficulties in formulating trade codes for the four titans of American industry—steel, oil, coal and automobiles—today were shortening the present stride of the NRA toward its goal of enfolding all business under work-spreading, pay-raising agreements.

To complicate further the issues affecting these four, Administrator Hugh S. Johnson and his aides were told by organized labor that steel was flaunting the recovery machinery's efforts to compose differences.

Johnson, bringing all NRA facilities to bear on the four major industries, sent word to them that codes must be agreed upon quickly

GANDHI PROCLAIMS "FAST UNTIL DEATH"

Starts New Hunger Strike as Protest Against Loss of Prison Privileges.

By The Associated Press

POONA, India, Aug. 16—The Mahatma Gandhi began at noon today what he said would be a fast until death.

The little Nationalist leader, who was arrested Aug. 1 at the outset of a new disobedience campaign and committed to Yeroda jail here for a year because he refused to obey a command to cease political activities, threatened to start the fast unless he was given full rights as a state or political prisoner.

At present he is treated as an ordinary prisoner, and certain privileges have been denied him. He had written the inspector-general of jails, asking for rights he enjoyed previously.

Thus he would be enabled, the Mahatma indicated, to conduct a campaign for the regeneration of the untouchables as he did while imprisoned up to May 8, when he started a three-weeks' fast in protest against "untouchability."

It was believed that the Mahatma's new fast was due to the fact he has been unable to supply his usual articles to the press this week.

The government came forward with an offer which it was expected, would impel Gandhi to abandon the plan. The government was willing to provide him with facilities enabling him to continue, under certain conditions, his campaign to better the status of the untouchables.

SHORTAGE OF WATER FACED

Ohio Confronted by Need of Conserving Supply Through Legislation.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Aug 16.—With all its interest in the conservation of natural resources, Ohio has been paying least attention to the most important—water, in the opinion of State Geologist Wilber Stout.

"Water has been of great importance to the people of Ohio since the early days of exploration and settlement," he says. "As time goes on and as the population increases it will become more and more of a necessity and will require even greater consideration.

"More than half of Ohio is so physically constituted through a thick blanket of glacial drift or through porous rock strata at the surface that the supply of ground water is ample to meet the common needs of the farm, factory or town. On the other hand, the remaining portion has been less favored by nature in this connection, the supply of ground water being generally meager and uncertain."

To Face Problem

By natural laws Mr. Stout contended that Ohio sooner or later will have a serious water problem for drought considerable inroads on the state's water supply.

Pointing to eastern and western states where even a well can be dug only by permit, the state geologist believes that Ohio may come to the point where legislative control of the water supply is necessary.

As the growth of population and industry has brought increasing demands for water, many factors formerly helping to conserve the supply have been disappearing, Stout says.

"The old mill dams which occurred on nearly every creek in Ohio helped provide an adequate water supply for surrounding territory, but most of them are gone," according to the geologist. "Swamps have been drained, fields have been tiled, forests have disappeared, streams have been straightened—all tending to carry away the water as rapidly as possible.

"Some Ohio cities have reached the limit of their growth for lack of more water. In some sections the only hope lies in the creation of reservoirs to store up rain water. In others the situation can be improved by storing up supplies in stream headwaters, thus helping to maintain an even flow through the dry summer months."

Some flood control projects carried out in Ohio since 1913 have been devised only to prevent floods where they might also have been used to conserve water supplies for drought periods, Stout says.

Menace Is Seen

While Ohio has considerable underground water, in many cases it is being used up faster than it can be replenished. The geologist cites several places in the state where the underground "water table" has been lowered as much as two feet this summer through irrigation and industrial use. He adds that as the water goes down the brines come up, offering another menace to the water supply.

About 1895 Dr. Edward Orton, Ohio State's first president and professor of geology, prepared a paper on Ohio's underground waters and the necessity of conserving them. Other geologists have voiced similar expressions, Stout says, but the statements have attracted no great attention.

The 1930 drought aroused considerable interest, for the time at least, and the dry period this summer has again caused some cities to give more serious attention to the problem. Stout anticipates the recurrence of these water famines until definite steps are taken to conserve the winter and spring rainfall for use in summer months.

CIRCUS COMING TOMORROW

Children are already gathering in round-eyed wonder over the approach of that panacea of all troubles—circus day tomorrow. The glittering galaxy of equestrians and aerialists are expected to and will hold their youthful audiences spellbound with their miraculous feats. And it is barely possible that adults, also, will hold their breath while Miss Christine Belmont leaps from one trapeze to another. And the p'rade! Old folks, young folks, men and women will watch as it unrolls its suggestions of the wonders that await on the circus grounds. Romance with a big "R"—that is the reaction that greets old and young alike with the very thought of the circus. And Daddy will be there—just because he had to carry Junior, and not because he "cared anything about going himself."

Such a day will be tomorrow, when Sam B. Dill's 3-Ring circus exhibits here at the Prospect street show grounds.

A street parade will be seen on the downtown streets at noon. Then the show, afternoon and evening. Three rings are used. Among the stars of the sawdust arena to be seen will be the famous Crandell family of England, equestrians; the Potter troupe, aerialists; the Florence family, acrobats; "Buddy," the internationally famous performing lion, and a score of clowns.

Performances will be given at 2 and 8 p. m. Doors to the menagerie will open at 1 and 7 p. m.

ABOUT ANYTHING

IN AND AROUND MARION

Knew the Answer

A resident of the East side of the city returned home one afternoon to find her very even-tempered and always polite colored maid in something of a temper. Inquiry into the unusual state of affairs brought out the story. It seems that the maid was attending to some work in the yard when two men drove up to the curb in what she described as a "fine looking" car.

"Say Dinah, where is the Fairfield Engineering company's plant?" queried one of the occupants of the car. "How did you know my name was Dinah?" was her retort. To his glib reply of "oh, I just guessed it" came her own rapid fire answer. "Well, then guess where the Fairfield Engineering company's plant is." And the car got under way immediately.

Wrong Guess

Taking a 7-year-old to these sophisticated talkies that depend on brilliant dialogue rather than motion for their success is just asking for more.

The child sat quietly for a while and then began to fidget.

In a few minutes he asked his adult companion, who was deeply engrossed in the picture, if there was to be any shooting. The man didn't reply, and the youngster repeated his question. Thinking to placate the child and his yearning for a little gun-play, the man said he guessed there'd be some in a few minutes.

"Gee, let's go then. I don't like shooting," the youngster popped.

Nonplussed, the man had to "guess" again that maybe there wouldn't be any shooting.

Happy Ending

The extra hours of leisure, NRA's gift to the poor working girl, almost brought grief and the price of a "wrong parking" ticket to one of the clan on her first afternoon. Four p. m. saw her donning her street raiment to leave her place of employment, and 4:20 saw her roaming through the offices at police station trying to get rid of her "ticket." Jumping in her car she treked around to a florist shop, left her car standing in front of the place and returned in a split second to find herself tagged. Pursuing the officer she offered an explanation but it fell on deaf ears and the best she got was the advice to "go to police station." All's well that ends well and she's still cheering for good old NRA."

FLASHES OF LIFE

McKEAN, Pa.—Drouth-stricken and passing motorists made S. Hancronnie despair of harvesting any of his corn crop. He set up a scarecrow and one day carelessly hung a pail on it. Later while pulling up stalks, he found the bottom of the pail covered with dimes, quarters and half dollars he believes were left by motorists in exchange for ears of corn.

WILLOWS, Calif.—Five prisoners liked Glenn county's new $80,000 jail as a place to board, but they found it a trifle too confining. Sheriff Roy Head said they fashioned a key from a mop handle and took turns going out at night to visit friends, always returning in time for breakfast. The sheriff said they now would face charges of jail breaking.

ITHACA, N. Y.—It cost Tompkins county more to board a prisoner 5 years ago than it does today, according to the records in an old ledger found by workmen demolishing the jail.

In 1857 the cost was 32 cents a day. In July this year it was 22 cents.

But Chaman Lal, journalist from India, expressed surprise when he found that some of his countrymen of that rank perform such tasks eagerly to pay their way through American universities.

"America has taught India the dignity of labor," he said.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, Aug. 17

ACCORDING TO the mutual aspects of the planets of social, artistic, romantic and domestic affairs, this is likely to be a day of most pleasant and happy memories. In the realm of friendship, courtship or marriage most gracious and propitious stars hold sway, these tending to increase happiness, advance the position as well as substantially increase the fortunes and prestige, either by high social, artistic or romantic affiliations or by the favor of those in high places. A secret enmity may be dragged into the open and disposed of.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very happy, progressive and profitable year, with the private affiliations enhancing the position, prestige and fortunes. Friendship, courtship and social popularity all combine to further the interests and bring personal happiness and gratification. A secret enemy is disposed of.

A child born on this day should be friendly, gracious, noble, popular and ambitious to shine socially or in artistic or fashionable life. It should be respected and powerful therein and in artistic realms.

Notable nativity: Julia Marlowe, actress.

Rapid Transit

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Aug. 15—Well, just sitting around here late this afternoon, and happened to have a day off tomorrow (Wednesday), and the west is playing the east polo in Chicago tomorrow. Think of leaving here late this evening, flying to Chicago, see the game and back Wednesday night.

Over Boulder Dam about 9 tonight, Salt Lake at midnight, see the sunrise in Cheyenne, breakfast in Omaha, lunch in Chicago. All on a passenger line.

And, by the way, the old airplane come in pretty handy getting the ex-president out of Cuba. There is nothing that will drive you to flying quicker than to have somebody after. If this NRA works out (and it certainly looks like it will), it will just show you you don't have to have war to make folks patriotic.

Homemaker's Question Box

Question — On the name plates of my washing machine motor and my electric iron I find these terms—volt, ampere, watt, horsepower, A. C., and A. C. or D. C What do these mean?

Answer—These are all electrical terms with which the users of electrical appliances should be familiar.

VOLT is the unit of electrical pressure; 10 volts are commonly used for lighting, small household motors, and portable heating appliances. A voltage of 220 is used for operating the cooking range Each appliance can be used satisfactorily on only one voltage.

AMPERE is the measure of rate of flow of electricity and is used to designate size of fuses, current used by motors.

WATT denotes rate at which power is used and a HORSE-POWER is 756 watts.

A. C. means alternating current This is supplied from a generator Most households in the United States using current from a high line are supplied with alternating current.

D. C. indicates direct current This is obtained from any cell or storage battery and from some generators.

The kind of current does not affect the use of most heating appliances or universal motors Other types of motors must be bought for the particular kind of current in use. This will be alternating current in households supplied from a central station, and direct current from individual home light plants.

Within his allotted 10 minutes started, empty save for a figure that emerged suddenly out of the darkness as it clambered up over the edge of a stringpiece.

"Is that you, monsieur?" Jacques asked in French.

"Yes," he answered. "Everything all ready, Jacques?"

"But, yes, monsieur. The boat is here. There is plenty of gas. And in the locker at the stern monsieur will find some hot coffee and sandwiches."

* * *

INSTINCTIVELY Colin turned his head shoreward along the wharf in the direction of the village and the twinkling window lights. "Germaine!" he said softly under his breath, and then aloud: "That is most kind of mademoiselle. Will you tell her that I—that I am very grateful to her. And now my thanks to you and I'll be off."

Colin lowered himself over the stringpiece and dropped into the bark. "Cast off!"

"All clear," Jacques answered. "Good luck, monsieur!"

The launch shot out from the wharf, and Colin, settling himself for his solitary run—about two hours, he figured it, judging from the time it had taken Germaine and himself to get as far as the point yesterday—headed for the lighthouse on the extremity of the cape.

And presently he rounded the cape, his eyes straining then out to seaward. It was pitch black. He was showing no lights himself—and it was rather obvious that Dollaire would not be showing any either! He could see nothing—no shadowy outline of a schooner out there. But Dollaire would not be off the cape for another two hours. Soldeur had said at half-past eight. That meant half-past ten. It was only ten now.

That gave him half an hour's start to begin with before Dollaire even sent ashore for his men and finally decided to his plans—and Dollaire's schooner, though it would of course, have an auxiliary engine, was not at all likely to be any more speedy than this launch.

With the lighthouse behind him now, Colin set his course, but, erring a little on the side of safety, headed slightly in toward the coastline. There was the promise of a moon later—just when, he did not know. But unless it came out before then as an aid to visibility, it would be an hour at least before he could hope to pick up the point.

And then his face hardened. He must get in touch with Lazarre—warn Lazarre. He did not know Lazarre. True, he had a description of Lazarre—but it was a description that would fit a thousand other dark-complexioned men. Could he go up to the club and ask bluntly for Lazarre? How would Lazarre explain that to the others?

Then, otherwise, how pick Lazarre out from his fellows—unless Lazarre went around half naked, exhibiting that bullet scar on his right shoulder? But even granting that he was able to identify the man, how get to Lazarre without any of the others knowing it? This for Lazarre's own sake.

* * *

BUT suppose he couldn't reach Lazarre without any of the others knowing about it? Dollaire's raid involved everyone at the club—including Lazarre. The warning would have to be given just the same. How, then, to account for Colin's presence at the club, and how he came to know about Dollaire? And suppose he did get the ear of Lazarre alone? What would Lazarre do? He would hardly desert his companions. Then how would Lazarre explain the warning he had received?

And then he did not know what racket they were exploiting at the club under the Mask's guiding genius, but suppose, even in the face of a warning that made it clear they would be hopelessly outnumbered, they decided to fight it out? What then? Lazarre possessed no "charmed life" any more than the rest of them. And Lazarre dead——

A twister! He laughed suddenly out into the night. He had always claimed that suspense was the essence of a story and that the apparently unsolvable problems piled one upon another were the essence of suspense. A story? A ghastly analogy! If only this were no more than—a story!

Time passed. The moon came out. There was a point. He swung around it and headed in to the bay. Lights, window lights, showed dimly in the distance. The club! On the lap of the gods—there was no other answer!

Hot coffee and sandwiches! Germaine! He had a far greater stake on the board now than the salvaging of his own skin. The vista of years stretched out before him, glad years all that he yearned for—if she cared.

The roar of waters came to him faintly. He pulled himself together. What was it they had said only yesterday about the Cascade river? Two channels emptying into the bay, deep water if one hugged the shore of the point—deep enough that if one went up the river a bit one could moor alongside the shore without fear of the boat being stranded by the tide.

The lights on the shore grew brighter. He was near enough to the club now. It would only be a short walk if he landed here; whereas, from the roar of the falls that portended fast water, the river might prove tricky if he went up any farther. He stopped the engine and headed in for the shore, reversed — and the nose of the launch grounded gently.

He stood up, moved toward the bow—and halted in blank stupefaction. Someone was crawling out from under the bit of decking there. A shaft of moonlight fell upon the figure. Germaine!

And stupefaction passed. He was beside himself with fear and anxiety. He sprang toward her and grasped her by the shoulders—violently.

"You!" he blurted out almost insanely. "Don't you know why I said you were not to come? Don't you understand? Don't you know that I love you—that there is danger here?"

And then in the moonlight he could see that her eyes were wet, though her lips were smiling.

"It's 50-50, isn't it?" she answered. "I love you too."

Philip Verriere Reveals His Knowledge of Avis Arlen's Attempts to Halt Wedding

AS I WALKED away upon Philip Verriere's arm from the little group centered around Avis Arlen, it seemed to me as if I could feel the girl's eyes and those of her mother boring into my back. But I was no longer concerned about either Avis or her mother. The meeting between her and the newly-wedded pair which I had tried to prevent but which Mary herself had engineered, was over and I told myself with finality there had been no revelation. I was quite sure that under the eyes of the assembled wedding guests and especially conscious of the vigilance of the Underwoods, she would make no further attempt to upset things—at the present time. I had no brief for what she might attempt in the future.

But Philip Verriere was as Katie would say, "full of things" once again. What did he wish to say to me that he should thus single me out for "escort to the coffee urn?"

"Famed Miss Avis"

He said nothing until we were well out of earshot of the little group that I felt were staring after us. When he did speak his voice was almost an inaudible murmur.

"Congratulations, my dear lady. You are as clever as you are beautiful. That trick is worthy of a Machiavelli."

"What trick?" I asked him in pretended astonishment, and, indeed, I did not know exactly what his reference meant, although I suspected something of what he was trying to tell me.

"You know perfectly well" he replied, "but I am going to give you the pleasure of telling me, nevertheless. The trick I am admiring is that by which you managed to have Miss Avis, who, if I am any judge, has been behaving in the manner of a leopard escaping from a zoo!"

I caught back a panic-stricken exclamation. How had he managed to discover the things which we had tried so hard to keep hidden?

"Elementary, my dear Watson," he smiled. "When Avis, at the very last minute, told her mother and me of the change in plans for the wedding processional, I knew that the flimsy excuse she offered, of disliking the color scheme and refusing to give up her green and silver gown, was not the real reason for the change. I thereupon set my wits to work to discover the identity of the colored gentleman lurking in the woodpile and I think, after due consideration, I have him located."

He smiled down at me benevolently and, not for the first time, I felt as if I were a mouse under the paws of a cat. But I meant to parry his questions as long as I could, and my comment upon his boast was the single word, "Yes?" with a slight upward inflection.

"Suppose I check off the items in regular order" he said. "First, I know, of course, that Avis had come down here in the full expectation of being a bridesmaid. It was my especial request, as you may remember."

"Oh, yes," I said hastily, wondering if were only my fancy, or was there a thread of menace in the silken warp of his words.

"Under those circumstances, I did not think that either Noel or Mary would raise any objections to the plan."

"Nor did they," I interposed hastily, if mendaciously.

He nodded, whether in assent or with incredulity I could not tell, and went on.

"So there was but one conclusion left for me to draw. Avis must have behaved so atrociously that Noel and Mary balked at her entering the processional."

He paused and looked down at me compellingly, but I meant to avoid that particular trap if possible.

"Even if your conclusions were correct, which, remember, I have not endorsed in any way, would you expect me to admit its truth?"

We stopped for an instant, in our leisurely progress toward the buffet, and he looked down at me with an intent gaze that seemed to reach to the inmost recesses of my thoughts.

"You already have admitted it," he said quietly. "Further words of any sort would mean nothing to me. And—I shall know how to deal with the situation. Do not fear! Will you permit me?"

He drew out the chair behind the coffee urn, seated me in it, bowed impressively, and made his way back to Mrs. Arlen, Avis and the Underwoods.

Consumers' Representative.

There may or may not be significance in the fact that the first administrator of the Roosevelt administration, except Secretary Woodin, to crack under pressure is the estimable lady serving as chairman of the consumers' advisory board of the NRA. She is Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, daughter of the late railroad magnate, E. H. Harriman, prominent social leader, founder of the Junior league, and sponsor of many a welfare effort.

Mrs. Rumsey is in the thick of the new deal. She makes her home in Washington with Secretary Frances Perkins, another distinguished lady in the President's official family. She has a wide acquaintance with women whose names make news in the Washington background. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, once the most written about woman in Washington, is her good friend. There are many others to whom she can turn.

As the title suggests, her function as chairman of the consumers' advisory board is to look out for the consumers' interest under NRA. It requires but little imagination to be convinced that she has more than nominal duties. If the apprehensive comments of the critical be taken as a clue, Mrs. Rumsey is, by virtue of responsibility, only second to President Roosevelt in the whole official family.

Her breakdown, it seems, was caused by friction with a certain professor of sociology acknowledged to be a keen student of conditions, but a controversial interpreter. Something—it may be revealed when there is time to tell the story—set the professor and Mrs. Rumsey at odds. Both being persons with stout convictions, one of them is going to have to be removed bodily from the arena—and it isn't going to be Mrs. Rumsey. She has earned her right to stay by fighting so hard to win that she had a nervous collapse last week.

In comparison with many accounts of what is going on in Washington, this story is unimportant. But because it is one of the first to reveal an acute interest in the fate of the consumer when prices are going up, it is retold. With sympathy for Mrs. Rumsey, it is good to know that someone is having an attack of nerves over the consumers' interest in NRA.

Elementary Lesson.

Earnest ladies and gentlemen who chew their fingernails over the country's crime problem might take enough time from consideration of their theories to digest a few interesting facts about practical things being done in crime-ridden Chicago.

It is a well known fact that the recent visit of General Italo Balbo to Chicago gave thousands of youths of Italian extraction a new hero—a man of their people who had done something famous. He spoke their language and the language of their parents. He quickly became their national representative in the modern hall of fame.

It is not so well known that real progress in the reduction of juvenile delinquency is being made in Chicago by using a method no more complex than the hero-worship of General Balbo. Records of the Catholic youth organization reveal how young Sicilians in the stockyard district have been salvaged temporarily from lives of crime by the simple expedient of giving them something else in which to be interested.

Among other things, they have been told that gangsters are cowards, a fact which isn't at all hard to prove. This is a direct approach to that misguided urge for adventure which forces many a youth into dangerous association with criminals. In his primitive code, courage is an essential quality. If he can be convinced by someone whose word he respects that gangsters are not heroes but cowards, half the battle is won.

This is far less complicated than the methods generated dimly in the minds of reformers who do too much speculating and too little acting. It is, moreover, a more effective device, because it entails nothing of which the subject is instinctively afraid. The appeal is direct: He is a Sicilian; General Balbo has amazed the world by leading a great flight of Italian airmen; he might do worse than to take such a man for a model. The world needs more heroes.

Vengeance.

It would be surprising to know with absolute certainty that many a politician did not quiver with apprehension as he read what happened in Cuba after Gerardo Machado finally was forced out of the presidency by the terrific pressure of his angry enemies. The vengeful wrath of the people is a terrible force when it is unleashed.

In Cuba it proved far more destructive than the revolution by which the government was remade. It was thirsty for blood, for the blood of Machado and those among his agents unfortunate enough to have made themselves conspicuous by their activities. Machado escaped by airplane. Others, with no airplanes and less intelligence, lingered in Havana and other cities to face the music. Many of them are dead as the result.

Extensive property damage is another sign of the people's emotional uprising. Long repressed, they flocked into the streets after Machado's departure from the presidential palace with the single purpose of releasing their hatred for a regime they had believed many times to be a permanent fixture of their lives. For the first time in many years, Cubans connected with Machado had more to lose than to gain by the fact of their association.

It is to be expected that turbulence will prevail in the island for an indefinite time to come. That is a feature of all revolutions. In the same way, it was to be expected that blood would be shed and property destroyed at some stage in the revolutionary process. The people's wrath, when it has mounted high enough to force the departure of a dictator, must find expression in something more tangible than polite applause and huzzahs.

Politicians in every government on earth can read the omen and take it for what it is worth. They should not fail to understand that the people can destroy what they create, in the form of government. When destruction is blocked by individuals who imagine themselves to be more powerful than the masses who placed them in power, those individuals can expect to feel the sting and blow of popular anger. Simple as it is, few politicians comprehend it, and among those who do few are wise enough not to accept their fate philosophically when it comes.

Exception To Praise.

News of the Kansas City sheriff who stopped long enough on his way home from a lawn party to kill two hoodlums and capture a third aroused a great wave of praise. All people who subscribe to the theory of meeting violence with violence as the best means of eliminating crime menace are obligated to add to that praise.

It was an amazingly cool-headed piece of action. If there were a sufficient number of such sheriffs in the United States, each one an extraordinary marksman, it would be only a matter of time until many bad men would be driven to cover. They wouldn't dare try to compete with sheriffs and policemen who kill their men.

This is a solution ardently desired by a considerable number of people who have given thought and study to the shortcomings of a civilization in which firearms inflict death at unexpected times and upon many people. It appears to them that the best way to combat violence is by violence, giving hoodlums as much as they can be made to take.

In all probability, they are right, for all practical purposes. But among the practical purposes is one giving the arms manufacturers a market for their business. The government assumes the right to make it difficult for persons dealing in drugs to carry on their business, yet it is possible in many states to buy a machine gun with little more trouble than is experienced in buying a loaf of bread. There is no uniformity in state laws dealing with manufacture and sale of firearms—and no federal regulation.

Promiscuous employment of firearms in the United States is a hangover from the frontier days. It is a hangover which makes nothing apparently illogical in the circumstance of a riot gun in the possession of a sheriff spending a social evening, a hangover which enables the solid citizen to get angry when it is suggested that perhaps the easiest way out of violence would be to do something about the ridiculously inadequate restrictions which invite violence.

A Job Begun.

American manufacturers with a direct interest in the French market were cheered last week by what appears to be an important diplomatic act by Ambassador Straus. More than 70 of this country's products were granted tariff relief by the French government.

The relief follows closely an unexpected restriction imposed less than a month ago when in France, without warning, maximum duties were imposed on the same list, in place of minimum and intermediate duties. American manufacturers were properly resentful of this discrimination, which makes the adjustment achieved in such order by Ambassador Straus more than ordinarily appreciated.

Lest it be imagined that France is engaging in altruism, there is necessity of pointing out the presence of a large fly in the ointment. France has intimated plainly its intention of imposing a general exchange surtax on all American goods at the rate of approximately 15 per cent, in order to provide compensation for the depreciated dollar. Thus, the whole effect of the episode is one of offering American manufacturers a boon on condition that American currency is stabilized.

The tariff truce in effect among leading nations is not violated by this ingenious provision, for the good reason that it is not an actual addition to the French tariff wall. The truce binds its signers only to forego new devices impeding international trade; the exchange surtax is an old chestnut in the French category of tariff implements.

It appears plainly, therefore, that the handicap of unsettled currencies which upset the world economic conference is anything but imaginary. Truly, settlement of difficulties with international trade awaits that return to health of domestic conditions which President Roosevelt declared to have prior claims on international attention. In effect, the French have said to their American business brethren, "Here is a juicier melon to cut. When you can come to us with a knife of standard size, you may have your share."

Comment of the Press

FOR ART'S SAKE, ALSO.

The director of traffic in Washington makes the sensible suggestion that motor vehicle commissioners of the country should get together and work out a color combination system for license plates to make identification easier. Seven states this year use white figures on green background. Eight states use white figures on blue and four states use black figures on white background. It is often difficult, sometimes impossible, for a policeman or other law enforcement officer to determine whether a speeding car is licensed in one state or another.

Under the proposed plan, the United States would be divided into four or five zones for license plate purposes and no duplicate coloring would be permitted in any zone.

The idea is good. It should be made effective in furtherance of art as well as law enforcement. Some license plate color combinations, of which the 1933 plate for Ohio is a notable example, are chromatic aberrations. Really it isn't necessary to hang a blemish, front and rear, for the purpose of identification.—Toledo Blade.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Probable Factor in Baldness.

Dandruff is one of the most common and annoying disorders of the scalp. Too often it is neglected, being regarded as a hopeless and unimportant ailment. But sometimes it leads to other and more serious disturbances of the hair and scalp.

It is a common belief that many cases of baldness and early loss of hair can be traced to dandruff. Certainly it creates conditions favorable to an infection of the hair follicles. Once these are diseased and their health destroyed, the hair becomes thin and baldness results. Some cases of baldness could have been prevented had proper measures been taken for the early removal of persistent dandruff.

The cause of dandruff has never been discovered. Some scientists claim it is due to a germ, but the particular germ has never been identified. It is quite probable the disease is caused by a microbe or germ of some sort, because the tendency to dandruff is easily passed from one individual to another. This annoying defect is a disease of modern civilization; at least, no records show that it afflicted primitive peoples.

Occasionally dandruff is encountered in persons who have been ill for a long time and are in a run-down and weakened condition. It is generally present when the health is poor. It is apt to be present when the body is deprived of proper food and nourishment, or lacking in fresh air and sunlight. Lowered vitality from failure to exercise in the open air, is another factor in the development.

There is another popular idea that dandruff is caused by too frequent washing and wetting of the hair. Of course, a dry scalp does not require as much washing to keep clean as does an oily scalp. When the scalp is oily, particles of dust and dirt are quickly gathered by the hair and frequent washings are necessary. But this treatment is not the cause of dandruff. On the contrary, it is good for the hair.

To avoid the evil effects of dandruff keep the scalp clean and free from the scales. Shampoo the hair with a mild and cleansing soap. Massage the scalp with the tips of the fingers or very gently with a small bristle brush. The massage stimulates the circulation of the blood in the scalp and consequently improves the health of the scalp. This helps to prevent infection.

If dandruff is excessive and persists despite cleanliness and care of the scalp, I would recommend the application of a soothing ointment to the scalp. This ointment should be prescribed for you by a physician after he has examined you and discovered your special needs. The ointment or other local remedy should be applied after the shampoo and preferably just before bedtime.

Never borrow or use another person's comb and brush. Bear in mind that this practice is the most common way of contracting dandruff. Always use your own toilet articles and see that they are kept clean.

Expose your hair frequently to the beneficial action of fresh air and sunlight. Never wear tight and contricting hats. They serve to cut off the circulation of blood and promotes baldness.

MAKING PARENTHOOD HUMAN.

Many parents seem to feel that if they show their children any human weaknesses they will forfeit their respect.

The children are encouraged to look upon their parents as omniscient and omnipotent, and the parents even feel a certain resentment at the suggestion that they may be capable of error.

Later, when the children begin to find human failings and weaknesses in these Olympians, the shock is so great that they are likely to turn to the other extreme and see only their shortcomings.

The father who can never bear to say, "I don't know," in answer to a question, but must always express an opinion or give a decision whether right or wrong, will sooner or later be found out.

There is no father who can answer every question that a child asks, and if the child is made aware of this early in life and realizes that his father expresses opinions only on what he knows, he is more likely to put faith in him in the long run.

The mother who must be idolized by her children, who wants to be first in their lives, who can never confide a human weakness to them, or apologize for an ill-considered punishment or unjust criticism, will finally find herself relegated to the memories of childhood along with Santa Claus and fairy tales.

Her children will go elsewhere to tell their troubles and discuss their problems and though she may retain her unreal perfection to them, she will be left alone.

There is a very real tie between parents and children who know one another's weaknesses as well as virtues and make allowances for them, which often leads to a real friendship between the generations in later life.

Highlights of Ohio History

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

THE BLANCHARD RIVER.

A comparatively small stream, the Blanchard river has proved itself a troublesome one in flood times. Its basin is small, limited to Hardin, Hancock and Putnam counties. It rises in the great Scioto swamp in Hardin, which is also at the head waters of the Scioto, and passes 10 miles north of Kenton, washes the cities of Findlay and Ottawa and empties into the Auglaize near the village of Coverdale in the western part of Putnam county. Most of the rivers of Ohio are sluggish, the average fall being two feet per mile, but in the level northwestern section of the state the rate of flow is slower still.

This tends to increase the flood stage in the rivers and to maintain the condition longer than in parts of the state not so near a dead level. Myriads of small runs empty into the Blanchard and the entire situation offers a flood menace to the region which was recognized as late as three years ago. There was a flood in the Blanchard in 1830 that was disastrous to animals, domestic and wild, the whole country being converted into a lake.

Washington, Aug. 16—Excepting the National Recovery Administration, probably no other governmental agency in Washington is so besieged these days as the Home Owners' Loan corporation.

Officials of that organization are experiencing great difficulty in trying to convince owners of homes that it is not their mission merely to refinance mortgages at a lower interest rate.

Daily throngs crowd into the offices of the corporation confidently expecting the government to lend them the money to pay for their homes at a lower interest rate than they are now paying banks and other concerns. They leave disappointed.

• • •

It is not confined to the man in the street, either. The other day a senator, who had a lot to do with getting this particular piece of legislation through congress dispatched a constituent to the corporation in the belief that the government could refinance his mortgage at a cheaper rate of interest.

At the Democratic convention in Chicago last year, everybody was a bit mystified every time Ohio's name was called in the balloting. Invariably there would be one-half of a vote that didn't go to Governor White, for whom the delegation was pledged.

That one-half vote belonged to W. W. Durbin of Kenton and went to Frankiln D. Roosevelt. The rest of the Ohio Democrats fussed and fumed but could do nothing about it. Durbin had been for Roosevelt long before the convention.

All of which to say that one W. W. Durbin is now in Washington with the title of register of the treasury. "Big Jim" Farley didn't forget that one-half vote when it came time to reward the "deserving" ones.

Durbin got the job without the help of a single regular Democrat in Ohio, too.

In the files of the NRA are hundreds of cases of the odd twists various businesses have taken since the blue eagle swooped down to take charge.

One of the most interesting concerns a broker who had long been in the habit of employing young college boys eager for the experience on a part-time basis. Their salary was practically nothing and all were working to learn the ropes.

Then came the NRA. The broker under the code that he signed found to his dismay that not only was he compelled to keep these boys on his payroll, but that he had to pay them the minimum wage as well—much more than before.

New York Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 15—Prize fights are doubtless the nearest brutality to bull fights in this country yet I find myself suddenly liking them. Perhaps because at the Carnera-Sharkey swat I rubbed elbows with old associates of whom I am fond and so seldom see.

O. O. McIntyre

In front Grantland Rice with a green eyeshade pecking at a typewriter. On one side Rube Goldberg and on the other Francis Albertanti, clenching a big fat cigar. We were co-slaves on the same paper years ago. All graying now, we sat tense watching two half-naked men, hitting, gasping, reeling.

I believe it's the crowd that fascinates with their swift murmurs, sudden silences and sharp up-roars. The man next seat wore a big badge, held a watch and seemed important. A cop routed him by a collar yank and thumb jerked toward the bleachers. The important gentleman was a crasher.

I started to turn my head when I saw the king-kongish Carnera's uppercut land. But something brutal and primitive riveted my gaze on Sharkey as he crumpled like a marionette at the end of a cut string. Face on the resin, his legs twitched and he was still. Disgustingly thrilling!

I hear Clare Boothe Brokaw, aesthetic attendee of prize fights, rarely sees a blow struck, closing her eyes at the beginning of each round and opening them at the close. She enjoys the roars and electric excitement.

Down a verdant path in Central Park I came upon a tearful rosebud seeking her lost little brother. I assured her we would find him and set off hand in hand. Upon inquiring his description, she explained between sobs: "He's 7, going on 8, in 2-A, and is vaccinated." Despite the vague description, we found him watching a baseball game while having an affair with a double deck ice-cream cone.

Anyway, the trip is already being buzzed about the Savoy and Claridge's. The Prince in mellower moments looks on his last visit to the States as one of his happiest. The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

LOVE RACKETEERS.

When the modern man says, "Live your own life!"—he means merely "Brighten up my life—until I get tired of you." Or something to that effect.

The old-fashioned villain was more frank about it. He gritted his teeth and vowed to "get the gal."

And that, dear children, simply illustrates the difference between the "single" and the "double standard," so often and so widely discussed, these days.

• • •

Woman thought she was attaining a great "right," when she helped herself to the right to experiment with love. Now, she is beginning to wonder if she wasn't doing herself a great wrong. For more than a decade she has been handing man all the good breaks and dealing him all the winning cards, while she has been dealing herself the joker.

There has been much discussion, lately, as to whether or not a modern man demands that a woman should be better than he is. All of which is tommyrot. It isn't because men demand it, that a wise-headed, clear-sighted, modern girl sets a clean, high code for herself and lives up to it; it's because her own feminine soul and instanct demand it; because Nature demands it—and because it makes her happy.

A normal-minded woman cannot live man's way and be happy. Biology and Nature are all against her. And she can't change the rules of the game.

Every woman is born an essential monogamist—a one-man woman; and no matter how often she may experiment with love or marriage, she is always seeking for one man and the one genuine, real love. She is never satisfied or content, until or unless she finds them.

The modern man is awfully strong for what he calls "the ideal standard," until he happens to fall seriously in love. Then, all of a sudden, he ceases to be "modern," and becomes as old-fashioned as a tallow-dip and as primitive as Adam. He wants his woman to be a one-man woman!

There must have been something after all, in those quaint old Victorian ideals and codes. Just as there was in those quaint old Victorian remedies. The onion-poultice your grandmother poured down your throat and that mutton-tallow she rubbed on your chest cured you of what ailed you.

And that old-fashioned feminine code of one-man love brought the average girl more peace and happiness, got her to the altar more quickly and safely and kept her husband more steadfast than the Mexican divorce and the companionate marriage ever will get it.

It's splendid to "know life" and be clear-eyed and sophisticated and you don't have to commit murder or go to jail or to join a band of racketeers and shoplifters, to know what crime is. And you don't have to experiment with love to find out what love is.

Love is something at which no woman can play, without getting burned fingers and a badly scorched soul!—Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Word was received today by local K. of P. lodge officials of the death of James Dunn Sr., father of James Dunn Jr., supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias lodges of the United States and Canada.

He died yesterday in Cleveland and brief services were held today. The body was placed in a vault to await the return of the son from Nova Scotia. James Dunn Jr. is well known in Marion. He will be one of the important figures at the Ohio K. of P. convention to be held in Marion next month.

15 REQUESTS FOR LOANS FILED HERE

Total of $20,000 Sought in Applications to Federal Agent.

Formal applications for loans from the Ohio Home Owners Loan corporation have been filed by 15 persons with Henry P. Drake, agent for the Marion sub-division. The applicants seek $20,006.

Of the 15 who have filed applications, nearly half of them are seeking cash loans to be used in paying off mortgages where the amount due is less than 40 per cent of today's value of the property. The others have obtained consent of the mortgage holders to accept bonds of the corporation.

Approximately 200 home owners have interviewed Drake regarding loans since the sub-division office for Morrow, Marion and Crawford counties was opened here last Friday.

to provide minimum wages and maximum hours.

His action bore full approval of President Roosevelt. Both were eager to bring in these four basic trades, which employ 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 persons.

As a cheery note, NRA officials had judicial approval in principle of their machinery from Justice Joseph W. Cox of the District of Columbia Supreme court. In an opinion yesterday, he denied an injunction against sections of the law permitting federal regulation of oil production, challenged as unconstitutional.

The latest industrial entry in the campaign was newspapers. For them, Johnson approved a modification of the national reemployment agreement submitted by the American Newspaper Publishers association.

Effective pending consideration of a permanent code, the plan prescribes, with exceptions, a 40-hour week and minimum salaries of the $12 to $15, among other things.

A conference today with representatives of the coal industry, embroiled in a labor wrangle, was looked to hopefully to start smoothing out their difficulties.

Oil chieftains were due to talk over with Johnson tomorrow an agreement for them which he has just about completed. Forecasts were that this will grant at least in part their appeal for price supervision.

Auto Code Hearing Set

A hearing on the automobile code proposed by the national Automobile Chamber of Commerce opens Friday.

A hope that steel's turmoil over the question of company unions could be immediately dissipated exploded yesterday in a charge by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that industry leaders walked out of a conference with recovery officials because of his presence.

The issue in steel is the guarantee of the recovery act's provisions for collective bargaining for labor, and the interpretation of them, as opposed to the industry's policy of operating company unions and barring nationally organized unions.

Restaurant Code Effective Aug. 21

A decision to adopt NRA wage and hour agreements in Marion restaurants on Monday, Aug. 21, was made yesterday afternoon at a meeting of 50 retaurant operators from Marion and the district yesterday afternoon in the offices of the Marion Chamber of Commerce.

Previously the operators had planned to put the agreements into effect on Aug. 20.

Operators from Mt. Gilead, Bucyrus and LaRue were guests at the meeting.

Talks were made by W. D. Brown, manager of the Chamber; Dr. N. Sifritt, county health officer, and Lester Clum, Marion accountant. C. A. Klunk, president of the Marion Restaurant association, and James G. Turoff, secretary were in charge.

The necessity of sanitation and methods to achieve it were described by Dr. Sifritt. Mr. Clum spoke on accountancy and explained to the restaurant operators some systems they might adopt in order to keep competent records. Many operators, members said, feel that more detailed methods of bookkeeping will be necessary for keeping records under the revised methods of operation.

The restaurant agreement, in brief, provides for 26 cents an hour for male and female labor and work weeks of 54 hours for men and 48 hours for women. Employers may charge their employes 25 cents a meal with a total weekly charge of not more than $3.

Split shifts of working time for restaurant employes are provided for in that industry's code. It is provided, however, that an employe must end one day's work within 12 hours, including time off, from the time of starting it. Not more than two shifts in one working day are permitted.

Tomato Growers May Get Boost

An increase of 25 per cent in the price of tomatoes to Ohio growers may result from a meeting held in Hotel Harding yesterday by the tomato packing branch of the Ohio Canners association.

The packers, representing nearly every tomato packing plant in Ohio, were called together to act on the government's request for the increased prices as a means of raising the farmers' purchasing power.

necessary for the state to spend about $300,000 a month for medical attention and to supplement tax warrants in lieu of rent under the Annat law with a small cash allowance to landlords, aggregating about $600,000 a month.

With federal allowances already made, the governor said the relief commission anticipates that it will be able to pay all authorized bills up to Sept. 1, when new sources of revenue must be made available.

At the governor's suggestion, legislative leaders are planning to submit his program of bills to a special joint committee of the house and senate and to conduct open hearings on the bills in the house chamber with as many members of both houses present as possible. The contemplated hearings would be in the nature of the entire assembly sitting as a committee of the whole. The hearings probably will start tonight.

White Outlines Alternative Plans

By The Associated Press

In conference with legislative leaders yesterday, the chief executive outlined the alternative proposals. They were:

1. A retail sales tax of two per cent during the remainder of 1933, estimated to yield $10,000,000 and a similar tax of one per cent from Jan. 1, to Sept. 1, 1934, estimated to yield another $10,000,000.

2. Continuation of the present admissions, cosmetics and beer cap taxes in effect, with amendments providing admissions—exemption of 10 cents rather than 40 cents, to yield $3,000,000 a year; present cosmetics tax to remain in effect, with a five per cent tax on toilet soaps, to yield about $2,000,000 annually, to amend the two per cent beer cap tax so as to place the tax at a rate of one-half cent on each 12 ounces of fluid content, and to include all bottled beverages, in 10 cents per pound or gallon on malt or brewer's wort, both excluding soft drinks; and a tax of mated to yield $4,000,000 annually. This provision would eliminate the present beer barrel tax on bottled beer. In addition, a three per cent tax would be levied on idomestic and commercial consumption telephone and gas companies, proceeds to be used to finance issue of county bonds for poor relief. It was estimated $3,000,000 would be raised annually from this source making available over a five-year period about $12,000,000 in bond issues.

To Aid Relief

3. Continue in effect the admissions, cosmetics and beer cap taxes, with amendments designed to increase their revenue return as outlined in the second proposal, with the additional provision that the four taxes be permitted to operate until Jan. 1, for the relief fund, after which the proceeds would be pledged for the retirement of a $16,500,000 county bond issue.

A fachute portions of the second plan, to yield $7,000,000, and in addition, include selective sales taxes estimated to yield from furs $700,000; jewelry, $1,000,000; cosmetics $2,000,000; phonographs, radios, and musical instruments $1,400,000; refrigerators, $1,000,000; sporting goods $800,000; beverages (other than those taxed under the bottle tax, $2,000,000; firearms, shells, cartridges and cameras, $500,000; lubricating oils and greases, $1,400,000, and safe deposit boxes $100,000—a grand total estimated yield of $27,700,000 a year.

5. A $20,000,000 state bond issue to be retired from a levy on real estate, the present cosmetics ad missions and beer taxes, with amendments as under the first plan, to be left in operation until the funds are available for poor relief from the bond issue.

PLAN TO CONFISCATE MACHADO PROPERTY

Action Contemplated by New Cuban Officials; Criminal Charges Filed.

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Aug. 16 Bank accounts and properties of the deposed President Gerardo Machado and his followers were investigated today with a view to requisition by their successors.

Secretary of the Treasury Joaquin Martinez Saenz, a leader in the A B C secret society, began the probe as provisional President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes' administration weeded out persons suspected of profiting by the Machado regime.

It was reliably reported that embargoes are planned on fortunes and property of Machadistas.

The newspaper Diardio de La Marina said Machado sent Mrs. Isobel Caliger, private secretary to the chief of the palace household, to Germany two weeks ago to buy a home for him there.

Reports from the Bahamas, where Machado is in exile, said the ostwhile president planned to rent a place near Nassau.

The de Cespedes government has let the Machadistas know they can expect to pay for any sins committed while in office.

Criminal charges of misappropriation of public funds, frauds, and legal exactions, falsities and swindles, homicides, murders, personal attempts, and use of firearms have been filed against Machado and five of his adherents in the Havana instruction court which is expected to name a special judge in the matter.

MRS. COSTELLO GETS ACQUITTAL VERDICT

Crowd Cheers as Widow Is Freed on Charge of Poisoning Husband.

By The Associated Press

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 16—Jessie Burnett Costello awoke today in an atmosphere of freedom, the yoke of accusation cast from her shoulders.

She awoke in the vine-clad stucco cottage in Peabody from which she was wrenched five months ago, under indictment for the poison slaying of her fire captain husband, William J. Costello.

Yesterday a jury, after one hour and 43 minutes of deliberation, granted her request that she be sent back to her three children, acquitting her of a first degree murder charge.

During her trial she became an enigmatic personage to those who watched her stand up under one of the most trying ordeals a woman has ever faced in a courtroom.

A throng awaited outside the court house all day to hear the verdict. It was only a matter of seconds before the news reached them and before the comely widow had been dismissed, their cheers reached her ears.

Upon his return from Washington, Mr. Teagarden said he will call a meeting of the entire association, to be held in Marion or Columbus, early next week to go over the situation.

Forty packers were present, including James Stoops of Van Wert, owner of the Stoops Packing Co. in Morral, the only plant of its kind in Marion county. Teagarden and Roy Irons of Clyde, O., were in charge of the session, which lasted until late afternoon.

Want Investments Protected

The officers said the meeting was "harmonious," but that action could not be taken until certain arrangements are made which will protect the packers investments in present crops. The packers also are uncertain, officers said, as to what they will be asked to do under the NRA program concerning wages and hours.

The government's request for increased payments was addressed to the country at large, Mr. Teagarden said, and has been accepted in a number of states. Among these he listed New York, New Jersey, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

JOHNSON APPROVES NEWSPAPER CODE

NRA Plan for Publishers and Employes Gets OK; Several Questions Left Open.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—The way was opened today for American newspapers to join the parade of business organizations marching under the blue eagle.

A modified presidential reemployment agreement providing for temporary minimum wages and shorter hours for newspaper workers was approved last night by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator.

As approved, the temporary schedule, submitted by the American Newspaper Publishers association, left open several controversial questions, including insistence of the publishers on their constitutional rights to a free press.

These questions will be determined before a permanent code is agreed upon after public hearings and presidential approval.

A major provision of the temporary agreement provides a 40-hour work week for reporters and other editorial workers receiving less than $35 weekly.

It also provides:

A 40-hour week for accounting, clerical, office, service or sales employes except a limited number of circulation and delivery men and outside salesmen.

The same schedule for mechanical workers or artisans. Publishers may, however, employ these latter a maximum week of 44 hours for any six weeks within any six months period during the period of the temporary agreement, but not more than eight hours in any one day.

The agreement exempts hours and wages under contract on or before July 1 1933, which cannot be changed except by mutual consent. In other cases a 40-cent an hour wage was fixed for mechanical workers or artisans, except apprentices.

Minimum wages for office and sales employes were prescribed at from $12 weekly in towns of less than 2,500 to $15 in cities of more than 500,000 population.

BANKING STRUCTURE REPORTED ON FEET

U. S. Report Only Few Institutions Closed or Open Under Restrictions.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16 — The American banking structure is virtually back on its feet.

Records of Walter J. Cummings, executive assistant to the secretary of the treasury, today show 13,951 licensed banks operating without restrictions and only 2,870 closed or operating on a restricted basis. These figures include national banks and state members and nonmembers of the federal reserve system but exclude mutual savings institutions.

The record is as of the close of business Aug. 12 for member institutions and as of July 26 for nonmembers.

Cummings, brought to Washington by Secretary Woodin and regaled with the unofficial title of "bank opener," said that on Aug. 12, there were 4,961 national banks doing an unrestricted banking business, with deposits of $16,898,145,000; that 740 state member banks with deposits of $9,741,967,000, and 8,250 non-members having deposits of $6,087,956,000 were operating on a full-time basis on July 26.

The composite picture shows deposits in open banks of $32,727,726,000, while a total of $2,320,220,000 was tied up in closed or restricted banks.

The picture is even brighter, Cummings said, since suggestions to taken of the many banks wanting into the [illegible] ...stitutions. In this connection he pointed out that of the 740 national [illegible] ...OK" of [illegible] ...

Trailed by Bloodhounds

Shank was arrested in the woods by a posse with bloodhounds about an hour after a farmer, George Clardy, reported seeing the car crash and a man flee the scene. After more than five hours of intensive questioning, Chief of Detectives Herbert Akers announced Shank at 2:55 a. m. had signed the following statement:

"I am guilty of the murder of the four persons at Malvern by poison and I only ask that you officers recommend to the courts that they grant me all the leniency possible."

The statement did not elaborate but Chief Akers said he expected Shank to discuss details and the motive later today.

Shank told officers he was an attorney and had come to Hot Springs to see the Colleys, visitors here, about a case. Yesterday they took a motor trip and stopped near Malvern for a picnic. It was after the meal that the Colleys died.

When he first was arrested, Shank said he suspected the meat eaten at the picnic was spoiled because the woman complained of illness shortly after the meal. He led officers to the grounds and Prosecuting Attorney Millard Halbert reported finding a jug of grape juice, some [illegible] and nearby some crystals which were sent to Little Rock for analysis. Motive Traced Back To Forgery Case

AKRON, O., Aug. 16—Mark H. Shank, held in Hot Springs, Ark., in connection with the poison deaths of four Ohio people, was a defense attorney in an Ohio forgery trial out of which robbery charges developed against Alvin Colley, an investigator for Shank and one of the four dead.

At Wooster, Sheriff Chester A. Newman said he held a warrant for the arrest of Colley on a charge of stealing receipts and other evidence which was to be used by Prosecutor Lyman R. Critchfield, Jr., in trying Clarence Brancher, of Barberton, on a forgery charge. Shank was attorney for Brancher.

Fred Cain, who shares law offices with Shank, said he had seen Colley several times and that Shank had used him in some investigations.

Sheriff Newman said evidence in the Brancher case was stolen from the prosecutor's office, while Brancher was free under bond.

Gasco and Huber To Meet in Indus League Clash Today

GASSERS CAN CINCH DEADLOCK FOR TOP BY TAKING DECISION

Benny Crabtree and Dale Schwaderer Slated for Twirling Duties.

With a tie for the Industrial league championship resting squarely on the outcome of the fracas, the Gasco club softball team will cross bats today at Lincoln park with the Huber Manufacturing company. The Gasco needs a victory over the Huber to assure a tie for the Thursday league diadem. The game means nothing whatever to the Huber except a chance to better the season's record a bit and at the same time make the Industrial league race an even more torrid affair than it has been all summer.

The Huber and Gasco have taking the first tilt, 1-0 and the second ending in a 5-5 deadlock. The Gasco will go into today's conflict somewhat of a favorite regardless of previous scores. The Huber, however, will be playing with everything to win and nothing to lose spirit which may bode plenty of ill for the utilities combine.

Benny Crabtree, who recently shouldered the first string pitching duties for the Huber, is expected to be on the firing line for the Greenwood street team, opposed by Dale Schwaderer, the Gasco's star right hander. Crabtree has been hurling in fine form recently and his slants may prove more than a little troublesome.

Right on the heels of the tilt with the Huber, the Gasco club will be called on to meet the Erie Traffic club, another tough aggregation. The latter game is billed Thursday. Should the Gasco get by both it will have the championship safely tucked away. Winning both of them, in a three-day period, however, happens to be a rather tough assignment.

CARNERA LAUGHS AT GARDEN HEADS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 16—Primo Carnera can't get the permission of Madison Square Garden to engage in a 15-round defense of his heavyweight title against Dan McCorkingdale, South African, in Rome Oct. 8, so he's going to go ahead and fight him anyway.

At least that's the declaration the huge Italian's managers left with garden officials after a two-day attempt to get the corporation's sanction the match. Carnera has a written agreement with the garden, binding him to fight his next match here but he wants to battle before his native Romans.

"We'll sue," said a garden official today and the Carnera folks, already immersed in bankruptcy proceedings, still fighting a breach of promise verdict rendered against the warrior abroad, and dickering with lawyers over movie and exhibition contracts, laughed heartily.

TOUGH FOR MAJORS

Spitball Keeps Twirler on Coast

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Weary, footsore major league scouts, tramping the Pacific slopes these summer days and nights in quest of pitching talent, cast a mournful eye upon one Frank Shellenback.

The tall Hollywood right-hander had won fourteen games when two-thirds of the season were over. Seven defeats were written against him in the Coast league standings.

Lams 'Em Out of Lot

In the four previous seasons he won 98 games, against 36 defeats, but that isn't the full story of his ability. He's a pinch hitter of the first water. Six times this year he has hit for the circuit.

Since 1929 he has made 39 round trips by hammering the ball out of the lot and hit batting average for the last quartet of years is .295. This despite the fact that "Shelly" now is 34.

But Shellenback can't be had by the majors. The most consistent hurler in the league over a prolonged period of time, he can't go up. Neither can he go down to a loop of lower classification.

He's Shipwrecked, Mates!

In fact, he is stranded on the shores of the Pacific, like a shipwrecked seafarer. He is marooned in the Coast league because of too much moisture. The spitball is his stock in trade.

Shellenback might still be in the major leagues, except for the vagaries of baseball legislation. He went up to the Chicago White Sox just before the saliva ball went out. Each major league team was allowed to register only two users of the slippery elm. The White Sox named Ed Walsh and Urban Faber.

Since Shellenback wasn't registered in the majors he couldn't stay. But he was listed property in the Pacific Coast league and back he came. In his 21 years in organized baseball Shellenback has worked on almost every club in the circuit. For half a decade he has been a fixture with the Stars.

He's a slow starter in the spring. The weak and strong alike annually fatten their batting averages off his offerings in the early days of the season. Almost as regularly the "experts" predict his finish.

Frank Shellenback pitches winning games and hits home runs in the Pacific Coast league but can't go "up" because he's a spitballer.

It was that way this year. They said the "Old Fox" would have to only. But Shelly knew better. And take the bench as a pinch hitter, so now, he's bending the old ball around the bats of the best.

Here's his record, the figures for 1933 taking in two-thirds of the season:

	Batting Average	HR	Won	Lost
1929	.322	12	26	12
1930	.279	4	19	7
1931	.255	9	27	7
1932	.296	8	26	10
1933	.290	6	14	7

WINNING STREAK OF COLUMBUS SNAPPED

Milwaukee Batsmen Crack Out 18 Blows in Second Game.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16—Eighteen blows from the bats of Milwaukee's Brewers have shattered the winning streak of the pace setting Columbus Red Birds.

After the American Association leaders had run their victory string to 11 games by defeating the Brewers, 8 to 4, in the opening contest yesterday, the Milwaukee batsmen opened fire, smashing out 18 hits to win the second game, 12 to 5.

Minneapolis scored 12 runs in two innings as the Millers defeated Louisville, 13 to 6. Trailing by three runs, the Millers scored eight runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth to win easily. Joe Hauser hit his fifty-sixth home run of the season.

Chapman's home run with Lee on base broke up a 13 inning duel and gave Indianapolis a 10 to 7 verdict over St. Paul.

"MOONLIGHT" GOLF FINISHES POPULAR

The second "moonlight" finish of a club championship tournament match in two days was put on last night at the Mar-O-Del club. R. G. Smallwood, the county treasurer and L. E. Cookston, finished their 18-hole tournament match all even. It was too dark to continue without lights so automobiles were lined up and the nineteenth hole played out. Cookston won, taking a six on the hole to seven for Smallwood.

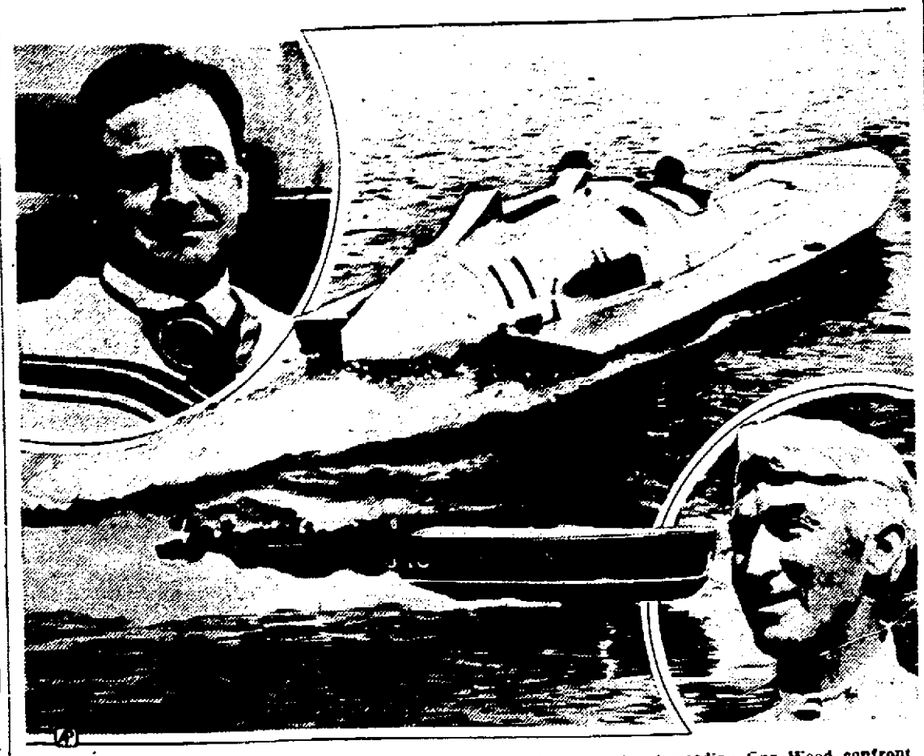
TO CHALLENGE WOOD FOR SPEEDBOAT TROPHY



The danger of breakdowns and hard luck as well as the task of out-speeding Gar Wood confront Hubert Scott-Paine when the Britisher makes his attempt to win the Harmsworth trophy at Detroit, Sept. 2. Previous challengers of Wood all have been stopped by breakdowns or accidents before completing the necessary heats. Scott-Paine and his radically-designed boat, Miss Britain III, which has only one motor are shown above. Wood and his Miss America X are below.

MARION GASCO CLUB LOSES NIGHT TILT, 3-0

Primmer Allows Five Hits But Wobbly Support Costs Ball Game.

The Marion Gasco club discovered last night that there is considerable difference between playing softball in daylight and in playing it with the aid of artificial light. While the Gassers were in the process of learning, this fact, however, they were absorbing a 3-0 beating at the hands of the Mansfield Gasco nine. The game was played at Mansfield.

Clarence Primmer twirled the game for the Marion club and did a good job of it, wobbly support costing him a chance to win the game. Primmer's work didn't match that of Dick Trisch, Mansfield pitcher, but it was still better than the 3-0 whitewashing would indicate. Trisch struck out 17 batters and allowed but three hits. Primmer struck out eight and was nicked for five hits. Wobbly support and not base hits lost the ball game.

Batteries and score by innings:

Marion	000 000 000	0	5
Mansfield	000 000 12x	3	6

Marion, Primmer and Young; Mansfield, Trisch and Hunt.

EPWORTH DEFEATS CHRISTIAN SENIORS

John Clark's Epworth No. 1 team finished up the season yesterday by taking a 5-2 decision from the Christian Seniors. The Christians did not put their regular team on the field, filling in with several ineligible players.

Batteries and score by innings:

Epworth	001 300 1	5	6
Christians	100 000 1	2	5

Epworth, Snyder and Wilson; Christians, Rank and Howison.

FIRST REFORMED TRIPS METHODISTS

First Reformed Sunday school's intermediate softball team took a 12-9 slugfest yesterday from the Epworth Midgets at Harding field. The winners pounded out 14 hits while the losers collected seven. Despite the heavy hitting, two pitchers twirled the entire game.

Batteries and score by innings:

Epworth	002 042 1	9	7
Reformed	200 035 *	12	14

Epworth, Thomas and Miley; Reformed, Hoffman and Cline.

LOU GEHRIG READY TO SHATTER SCOTT'S RECORD FOR GAMES

Yank First Baseman To Equal Mark Today With 1,307th Start.

By The Associated Press

While American league baseball fans had their eyes turned toward St. Louis and Lou Gehrig's approaching record, followers of the National league were watching the Boston Braves today and wondering if they would nominate themselves as official "softeners" of the western clubs for the New York Giants.

Gehrig, who played his 1,306th consecutive game with the New York Yankees and set the batting pace with three hits as they beat the Browns 8 to 5 yesterday, had a chance to equal "Deacon" Everett Scott's major league durability record today.

The Braves started their home stand against the third place Chicago Cubs in a manner which reminded fans of their famous 1914 feat, when they bumped all four western clubs in succession and practically took charge of the pennant race although they finished in seventh place. Yesterday their stunt was to make five hits off Guy Bush good for a 2 to 1 victory over the Cubs.

This result dropped the Cubs a full game behind the idle Pittsburgh Pirates and kept the Braves close behind the fourth place St. Louis Cardinals, who won the only other game on the National league program. With Bill Hallahan pitching six hit ball, the Cards trimmed the Phillies, 5 to 1.

The Yankee victory, gained largely through a five-run rally in the fourth, served only to keep the world champions 5½ games behind Washington. Trailing the Chicago White Sox in the early innings, the Senators whaled Sam Jones for four hits and three runs in the sixth and went on to win 5 to 1.

A prospective mound duel between Lefty Grove and Wes Ferrell turned out to be a slugging match as the Philadelphia Athletics beat out the Cleveland Indians 8-7.

The Boston Red Sox evened their series with Detroit by a 5-3 victory.

GOSHEN READY FOR HAMBLETONIAN RACE

By The Associated Press

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 16—The little town of Goshen today paid homage to the memory of its equine "first citizen," Hambletonian 10th with the seventh renewal of the Hambletonian stake, a $40,000 race.

Hambletonian 10th, an ancestor of about 95 per cent of the trotters and pacers who compete in the grand circuit races, was born near Goshen and now lies not far from the village with an imposing monument to mark his resting place.

The largest crowd ever to see the Hambletonian was expected today.

A dozen three-year-old trotters, the largest field since the year the stake was inaugurated, was named to start today.

"BUDDY" PACKS WALLOP

Max Baer's Brother Starts Fighting

SAN FRANCISCO.—With a pair of hands big enough to hide the Sunday meat in, six feet five inches of physique and 247 pounds of bulk, Buddy Baer has started on the pugilistic trail in the footsteps of his now famous older brother, Max.

After training for several months, the 18-year-old giant who makes his brother appear small by comparison and rivals the vast hulk of Primo Carnera, made his debut in a bout that was interesting but not particularly enlightening as to his possibilities.

His opening appearance took place in an amateur club in San Francisco. Fists encased in huge exhibition type gloves that resembled blown up pillow cases, the youngest fighter in the Baer family showed he had a good elementary knowledge of boxing and also possessed a punch during the minute or so of fighting.

Young Baer's opponent, a mere 195-pounder, apparently was unnerved by his rival's size as he dropped to the canvas from a light punch and stayed there.

Those interested in Buddy's possibilities intend to work him along slowly. He will retain his amateur status and appear in three round bouts for the present since all are agreed he needs much more coaching before he dips into the professional class.

"BUDDY" BAER

Here's "Buddy" Baer, brother of the famous Max, who has donned the boxing gloves. He weighs 224 pounds and is 6 feet 5 inches tall.

PONCE DE LEON NEVER FOUND THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE (the cure for auto intoxication. Philosophers, Scientists, Chemists have for ages sought in vain for a reliable BODILY ELIMINANT of SELF POISONING (AUTO-INTOXICATION). So called mineral waters and fakers with their herbal compounds soon become ancient history of so called failures. Youth would never turn into old age, if a perfect cure was ever found and OLD AGE would rapidly turn back to YOUTH. Among many symptoms that indicate one having chronic AUTO INTOXICATION; Eyes become dim. Hearing is dulled, Gait unsteady, Skin becomes unnatural in color and Wrinkles appear. If above symptoms come on rapidly, just a few years of LIFE can be expected. The patient in time becomes so clogged with INTERNAL FILTH that they usually die with Heart Trouble, Paralysis, Apoplexy, or Bright's disease. Often they become chronic sufferers of Arthritis, Rheumatism or Neuritis. There is hope in LOWER'S HEPATIC TRITICUM. People come for miles around for this remedy. After using it eyes become clear, hearing improved, as one customer said "It was like coming out of a cave into sunlight" (perfect health). Our claim on HEPATIC TRITICUM in our observation is the best ELIMINANT of AUTO INTOXICATION now sold on the American market. Sold by LOWER'S PHARMACY, Center and Leader st.

WHEAT PRICE DROPS 5 CENTS

Mob Selling Blamed by Traders for Maximum Decline in Grain.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 16—Mob psychology received the other blame from traders today for a new maximum allowable number of grain prices including 5 cents a bushel collapse in wheat.

Something like a flood of selling orders which had accumulated during stagnation of dealings the last three days poured into the grain pits at the opening and forced the markets down to the furthest point that emergency regulations of the board of trade would tolerate for a 24-hour period. No recovery ensued.

Since the season's peaks were reached about a month ago wheat has dropped 34 cents, corn 15 cents, oats 13 cents, rye 45 cents, and barley 50 cents.

Wheat closed nominal, 5 cents down from the average of yesterday's finish, corn 4 cents off, oats showing 3 cents decline and provisions at a setback of 50 cents.

Stoppage of business in grain was just about as complete as during recent days when the market was continuously upheld at the artificial minimum instead of being subjected to only a single day's liberal limits of fluctuation. Some trade notables said the public was paying too much attention to technical conditions and too little to a broad view which suggested that values had not yet reflected various stimulating market factors.

Provisions like grain quickly reached the day's minimum and stayed there.

Contract Bridge Tournament All a Mystery to Kibitzer Not Schooled in Intricacies of Pastime

BY HALLIE BOLTON

S. VAN DINE, Miss Robinson, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Ellery Queen, Culbertson and Lenz—what do they mean to you? Not one of them ever thought up such a mystery as the one enacted last night in the Marion club room at Hole Harding.

At least that's what this kibitzer who watched the first few "boards" of the duplicate contract bridge tournament thought. What's a "board"? Well, a "board" is a hand. It's used in duplicate matches. That's what the kibitzer learned until 12 of them were brought out and then that little mystery was solved. A "board" has four hands, one of each side, into each of which 13 cards are dropped. After every "board"—hands to the unlisted—the same 13 cards are dropped into the same little slots and the "board" is sent to the next table. The cards are never shuffled. Every North South Hand and West plays the same cards.

And there was another thing. Names didn't count—it was the North South Hand and West Nortons when play began.

There were four other kibitzers there last night. Mrs. Dorothy L. Fahey, Mrs. Frances Huber, Mrs. J. Harold Prendergast and Homer Cook, but from the gleam in their eyes it was apparent at least they knew about contract.

To this kibitzer, who wouldn't give two hairpins for all the bridge playing in these great United States, the tournament was a mystery. Even the [illegible] were in [illegible] even the Dionne[illegible] out to date.

COUNCIL GETS YEAR'S BUDGET

Bucyrus Officials Set Date for Public Hearing for Aug. 29.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Aug. 16—Public hearing on the proposed budget for the operation of the city of Bucyrus for the year 1934 was set for Tuesday, Aug. 29 after the tentative budget was presented to council last night by City Auditor Constance R Keller

Because county commissioners have refused the request of the city of Bucyrus to allocate more than $3,000 of the $57,000 received by Crawford county from the public utilities excise tax, council authorized the finance committee together with the mayor to meet with the commissioners in an effort to obtain more of the funds for relief purposes Commissioners have refused the request of the city, Mayor Schuler reported, stating that too many requests have been made from the fund, making it impossible to grant to Bucyrus more than $3,000 Commissioners were reported by the mayor, however, as being willing to finance 50 per cent of any public improvement up to $2,500, which might provide employment.

Attention of council members was again brought to the need of the city of a sewage disposal plant when E L Barnaby of the American Activated Sludge Co placed before council plans for the construction and operation of a complete plant for $125,000.

The city was ordered by state health authorities three years ago to construct a sewage disposal plant but the proposition met with the opposition of voters when a $250,000 bond issue for that purpose was voted on last November

Hay Fever

We do not unqualifiedly recommend Salicon for Hay Fever—we can't It isn't a specific There is no known specific for Hay Fever.

And yet—

For over fifteen years we have received letters from Hay Fever sufferers who have told us they got relief with Salicon and that it was the only thing that ever gave them relief

Naturally, being enthusiastic these good people urged us to advertise Salicon for Hay Fever We have tried Salicon out with a considerable number of cases Many actually got relief Some did not So all we feel we ought to do is to state the plain facts

If you have Hay Fever and cannot find anything to relieve you perhaps Salicon will help you as it has others

If you try Salicon and find it does not help your Hay Fever, you can still keep the remaining tablets in the bottle in case you, or any member of your family, catch a cold, have a headache or suffer similar pain That Salicon will show you results. That we can vouch for

If Salicon helps your Hay Fever—well—that will be great—for Hay Fever, as you know, is just plain misery
